Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in-

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or

(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

Claims 1 and 3-18 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by Suga.

Suga teaches of a fingerprint detecting device comprising an optical plate (101) made of optically transparent material, a light source (104) and an imaging system (105) positioned to receive light collected from the finger wherein the optical plate has an index of refraction of less than 1.44.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2-3 and 19-20 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Suga.

Suga teach of a fingerprint detecting device comprising an optical plate (101) made of optically transparent material, a light source (104) and an imaging system (105) positioned to receive light collected from the finger wherein the optical plate is made from silicone and/or has an index of refraction of less than 1.44 (column 5).

Suga et al lacks the teaching of the optical plate material being TPX or Butyrate.

At the time of the invention it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to replace silicone with either TPX or Butyrate since both have indices of refraction less than 1.44 and since applicant has not disclosed that use of TPX or Butyrate solves any stated problem, has any specific benefit, or is for any particular purpose and it appears that the invention would perform equally well as a functional equivalent with silicone.

With reference to claims 19-20, the method of forming an optical plate, the claims appear to contain no patentable steps in manufacturing an optical plate, however if applicant believes that the method steps are novel, examiner will consider examining the claims after an election in reply to a restriction.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. ***

Maase et al (5,528,355) and Sarto (6,175,407) and Suga(6,115,483) teach of fingerprinting devices wherein the optical plate contains material with a refractive index less than 1.44.
